Nouns

Nouns in Portuguese are either masculine or feminine. The gender of a noun is typically determined by its ending. For example, nouns that end in "-o" are usually masculine, while nouns that end in "-a" are usually feminine.

Verbs

Portuguese verbs are conjugated according to person, number, and tense. The conjugation of a verb depends on the infinitive form of the verb and the subject of the sentence.

Adjectives

Adjectives in Portuguese agree in gender and number with the noun they modify. For example, the adjective "grande" (big) would be used to describe a masculine noun, while the adjective "grande" would be used to describe a feminine noun.

Sentences

Portuguese sentences are typically structured in the following order: subject, verb, object. However, this order can be changed for emphasis or to create different sentence structures.

Era uma vez um menino chamado João. João tinha um cachorro chamado Rex. João e Rex eram melhores amigos. Eles brincavam juntos todos os dias.

Um dia, João e Rex estavam passeando no parque quando viram um grupo de meninos maiores. Os meninos maiores começaram a provocar João e Rex.

João ficou com medo, mas Rex não. Rex latiu para os meninos maiores e os assustou. Os meninos maiores fugiram e João e Rex ficaram a salvo.

The Boy and the Dog

Once upon a time, there was a boy named John. John had a dog named Rex. John and Rex were best friends. They played together every day.

One day, John and Rex were walking in the park when they saw a group of older boys. The older boys started to tease John and Rex.
