The Masterwork Practice Performance Level is the highest level of piano playing achievable by late intermediate students. It is a challenging level that requires students to have a strong technical foundation and a deep understanding of music theory. Students who achieve this level are able to perform complex pieces with accuracy, expression, and style.

Requirements

To achieve the Masterwork Practice Performance Level, students must meet the following requirements:

- Be able to play all major and minor scales and arpeggios in two octaves
- Be able to sight-read simple pieces at a moderate tempo
- Have a strong understanding of music theory, including rhythm, harmony, and form

- Be able to practice independently for at least 30 minutes each day
- Have a teacher who can provide guidance and support

Repertoire

The repertoire for the Masterwork Practice Performance Level is challenging and varied. Students are expected to perform pieces from a variety of genres, including classical, romantic, and contemporary. The repertoire should include:

- At least one movement from a major piano concerto
- At least one sonata by a major composer
- At least one etude by a major composer
- At least one piece from the 20th or 21st century

Assessment Criteria

Students are assessed on their performance of the following criteria:

- Technical accuracy
- Musical expression
- Stylistic interpretation
- Stage presence

Students who achieve the Masterwork Practice Performance Level are eligible to participate in advanced piano competitions and festivals. They are also well-prepared for further study in music at the college or conservatory level.

The Masterwork Practice Performance Level is a challenging but rewarding goal for late intermediate piano students. By meeting the requirements, learning the repertoire, and practicing consistently, students can achieve this high level of piano playing.

If you are a late intermediate piano student who is interested in achieving the Masterwork Practice Performance Level, I encourage you to talk to your teacher and start practicing today!
